CARS DERAILED.

A train of bad-order cars which were being taken to Houston to the shops came to grief at Waller last night, when several of them jumped the track. No one was hurt, and the only inconvenience was the delaying of the passenger trains. The Hustler, No. 16, detoured via Brenham, while No. 5 was about two hours late.

BATAVIA PRESERVES.

The Batavia brand of preserves represent the very best that is possible to be made from selected ripe fruits, pure sugar and highest skill. We are featuring preserves for this week and will sell any of the twelve kinds on display at 30c a jar. It is a good time to put in a supply. Come by and look at them. HARDY NEWTON.

ROUND BALE COTTON

The new press now in operation at Dunlap's gin promises to solve the cotton baling problem. This machine makes a perfect bale of the required density for all purposes and does not injure the fiber of the cotton. It is of convenient size and weight to handle and for this reason the steamship lines carry it at 25 per cent less freight. It is entirely covered with burlap and the insurance companies insure it at 25 per cent less premium. There is no waste, no storage, no warehouse charges and no selling charges. For these and other reasons I can pay you one-half cent per pound, or $2.50 per bale, more for your cotton than you can get for it from any other buyer. In addition to this premium, you save warehouse charges and selling charges, and you sell your cotton yourself and save the time and labor of carrying the cotton to the warehouse and waiting on your merchant to sell the cotton. There is no danger of claims for "heads out," "bands off," and the many other rules applied to the square bale way of putting up cotton.

I guarantee to everyone who gins on the round bale to give you $1.60 more than you can get out of your cotton when it is put up in the square bale. You have worked for that crop, why not get the most money possible out of it? Try your next bale on the round press and be convinced.
